The ef-be said to have gone out—and is being fort will be renewed. replaced with a new and by far more elegent form of coiffure. A woman's "crowning glory is he sair" and since the earliest times the art

f dressing the bair has occupied the time, attention and ingenuity of womer, a pleasing and gratifying pastime from which they have been debarred during the rather protracted reign of no hair, so to speak, or, at most, the easily arranged bang and Grecian knot at the back.

The new colffure named in honor of Mrs. Cieveland and which bears her name, is the most graceful of the several novelties lat-ly introduced and will, beyond all doub; become the most popular While fulfilling its mission of displaying the hair to the best advantage at the back, it admits of any arrangement of the front hair that may suit the features and the taste of the wearer and can be worn with any style of bat. Tals mode consists simply of three strands of long bair, curled about four inches at the ends, and arranged as follows: twist all toe hair on top of the head, almost close to the forehead, place s front piece dressed in loose floffy rir ge -or in any style which the wearer may fancy-over the twist, so as to raise in high towards the crowe, then take one believed Mr. Mills will be well enough by s rand of the three into which the long hair must be divided, make into a plate and and place in the center so that the to consider it in about ten days there-curied ends just reach the neck; after.
